

Major Lucas Burke is a Communications Strategy and Operations Officer in the U.S. Marine Corps, currently serving as the Director, Warfighter Support Division at the Marine Corps Tactical Systems Support Activity. His professional background is in all areas of information warfare, with academic research in adversarial cyber operations, and a personal passion for innovation in the military. He has served multiple overseas tours, supporting conventional and special operations forces across the globe.

Lucas holds a masters in computer science from the Naval Postgraduate School, where he was awarded the Rear Admiral Grace Hopper Award for Outstanding Thesis; and a bachelors in Political Science from the U.S. Naval Academy. He holds additional certifications as a Military Scrum Master and Warfighter (Human) Centered Design facilitator.

Taye Folk is currently pursuing her masters in International Security at George Mason University. An undergraduate of George Mason, her bachelors is in Criminology, Law, and Society and she pursued minors in Geographic Information Systems and Intelligence Analysis. Taye is active in her university community and was awarded multiple community outreach and relationship building awards upon her graduation, noting her dedication to helping others, leaving something better than how she found it, and creating a welcoming and strong community. She is passionate about continuing this dedication to communities by taking on roles that allow her to add to the both long-term mission success while helping others and making a positive impact along the way.

Josh is passionate about making people and organizations better through leader development. He is an 11-year active-duty U.S. Army officer in the Engineer branch and a Major currently serving as a student at the Command & General Staff Officer Course at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Josh is the founder and director of 3x5 Leadership, which offers a robust portfolio of free resources for others' leader development and simultaneously serves as a personal leader reflection tool for him as well.

He is married to Lindsey, and they have a 1-year-old daughter. Josh is a graduate of the United States Military Academy and Columbia University.

James Espinoza served for six-years in the U.S. Army as an aircraft repairman and shop supervisor. He worked in private business in the printing industry while finishing college working full-time and has been a 17-year law enforcement professional since. He has worked many different assignments throughout his career including patrol, gang detective, robbery/homicide detective, SWAT crisis negotiator, terrorism liaison officer, multi-discipline instructor, and he is currently a district attorney investigator. He has a masters in Law Enforcement and Public Safety Leadership from the University of San Diego. James currently volunteers his time mentoring veterans and non-veterans who are pursuing a career in law enforcement. James is also the President & co-founder of The Veteran Mentor Project, Inc., a new non-profit organization, with the primary mission of supporting veterans and first responders in transition from service with the hope of preventing post-service crisis and helping to end the suicide crisis our veterans now face.

Mike is an Engineer officer and a Major in the U.S. Army with over 15 years of service and experiences in Korea, Iraq, and Afghanistan. He is currently the Engineer Major Career Manager for over 650 fellow Army Engineer Majors. Previously, he served as the Brigade Operations Officer for the 2nd Sustainment Brigade consisting of 2,700 Soldiers and civilians. Prior to that, he served as the Executive Officer for the 11th Engineer Battalion in the Republic of Korea, which consisted of 900 Engineer Soldiers providing combat engineering and construction support to the theater. Mike is married to his wonderful wife Eunha (Kim) for the past twelve years, and they have two children, Johsua (10) and Heidi (7), and a large Labradoodle, Theodore Roosevelt.

Nicola Tait is a Sergeant currently serving on a Full Time Reserve Service contract in the UK's Royal Air Force (RAF). She joined the Regular RAF in 1998 and enjoyed tours in Personnel Services Flights at RAF Coningsby, RAF Cosford, Tactical Supply Wing Stafford, RAF Honington, and a recruiting role in Shrewsbury. She now works in Squadron Human Resources for a Reserves Logistics Squadron. Passionate about personal development, Nicola is a L5 Coach and Mentor and a HeartMath Coach. A mindfulness teacher since 2019, she regularly runs Station workshops to introduce the benefits of mindfulness to station personnel. An avid learner, environmentalist, and reader, she is more likely to be found reading a book than scrolling a phone! Mum to Max (24) and Nathan (12), she enjoys precious time with her sons and time outdoors.

Albert Daniel Jenkins III is a Logistics Corps Captain in the U.S. Army, currently in a Company Command position for the 13th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion at Joint Base Lewis McChord. Born in Atlanta, Georgia, Daniel graduated from Howard University in 2012 with a bachelors in psychology and commissioned through ROTC receiving the George C. Marshall Award. He spent five years in higher ed after that, working for the Public Health Sciences Institute at Morehouse College, providing oversight for two different multi-year CDC grants totaling more than $1 million dollars that aimed to introduce more minorities into the field of Public Health. Later, before joining the Regular Army, he earned his MBA and is in the process of earning his Project Management Professional certificate. Daniel is married to Stephanie, and they have one child, Akhari. As a family, they really enjoy traveling and creating new memories.

Jer McKoy is an action officer on the Joint Staff in the Pentagon where he analyzes strategic issues and evaluates future capabilities as a solutions architect and product manager. His fourteen years of U.S. Air Force service focus on analysis and technology, with multiple special operations and interagency deployments. He partners with portfolio managers to integrate design thinking and lean principles into experimentation and investment recommendations, which shape senior national security leader decisions on issues like data sharing, artificial intelligence, and distributed computing.

Prior to his current assignment, Jer worked with a small team on emerging threats to defense activities and deployed to the Middle East to combat growing technology development by extremist groups. Jer lives in the Washington, D.C. area with his wife, an author and entertainer, and their dog, where he actively volunteers with several national security-focused non-profits. His current research leverages data analytics to evaluate influence activities from an intelligence perspective.

Thomas Bishop is pursuing the Harvard Kennedy School's Mid-Career MPA degree. He is from Pine Bluff, Arkansas, and currently resides in Greenbelt, Maryland. Thomas' experiences include 18 years of military service (U.S. Army Reserves and Active Duty) along with six years of experience as the associate research director for a non-profit research organization. A veteran of Afghanistan, his other experiences include a Black Engineer of the Year Award for work in Affirmative Action, becoming a Pat Tillman Foundation Scholar, earning a Martin Luther King Scholarship (twice), gaining a Project Management Professional, among many other military and civilian awards and credentials. Thomas also has a masters in Political Science from the University of Arkansas along with a forthcoming masters in Operational Studies from the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College.

Elizabeth "Liz" Vaughan Moyer is a Captain in the U.S. Air Force stationed at Edwards Air Force Base, California. She is the Deputy Director of the 412th Force Support Squadron, responsible for the installation's talent management and care solutions. Liz has published four articles and is a certified leadership coach, Volunteer Victim Advocate, and Master Resilience Trainer. As a first-generation American, she has a passion for education and public service. Liz recently earned her Doctorate in Strategic Leadership and is married to Special Agent Aaron Moyer, the OSI Commander at Detachment 111.

Greg Beckman is a graduate of the United States Military Academy and was commissioned as an Engineer officer in the U.S. Army in 1992. Following six years of service, Greg transitioned to Logistical operations in New Jersey and Atlanta, Georgia. In 2001, he moved to pharmaceutical sales and sales operations leadership within Abbott and AbbVie. Each of these roles of increasing responsibility and variety have been wonderful learning experiences. Greg is a husband to Nora and a father of four very active kids. His hobbies include collecting vases, building model boats, and salmon fishing.

Miguel Moyeno is a Captain in the Armor branch of the U.S. Army. He was commissioned from the United States Military Academy as an Infantry officer in 2012. Currently, Miguel is a member of the Eisenhower Leader Development Program pursuing a graduate degree in Social-Organizational Psychology (Leader Development) at Teachers College, Columbia University in New York City. Miguel's career highlights include leading two platoons in the Republic of Korea, commanding two companies, and serving as an Security Force Assistance Brigade advisor team leader. He is also a 2020 Center of Junior Officers Leadership Fellow. Miguel is married to his wife Amanda, and they have one daughter, Sophia (3), and are expecting a son, Daniel.

